A TEAM IN THE MAKING.

An officially recognized, student-run motorsports organization at the University of South Carolina.

CCR is acquiring a vehicle and the equipment needed to establish its racing program. With an initial focus on Mazda MX-5 Miatas, the team is preparing to turn its motorsports ambitions into practical experience.

Engineering, operations, and marketing all have a place in that work. Membership is open to USC students and faculty, bringing different skills together around a shared racing program.

ROOTED IN ENGINEERING

MOLINAROLI COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING AND COMPUTING

USC's college educates students in engineering and computing disciplines. Mechanical systems, electronics, software, and data analysis all have practical relevance to vehicle preparation and race operations.

A common platform

The Collegiate Racing Series (CRS) brings universities into wheel-to-wheel road racing. Its A Series uses a specification-based ND Mazda MX-5 platform, emphasizing preparation, engineering decisions, and team execution.

A complete team effort

Vehicle preparation, setup choices, race strategy, driver development, and team operations connect technical work with disciplined decision-making. Students learn how each role contributes to performance on track.

CCR's status: CCR is developing its racing program and pursuing wheel-to-wheel circuit racing. Participation in CRS and a competition schedule have not yet been confirmed.
